Hewell Grange Main House

Description

The Property extends to circa 247 acres (100 hectares), the majority of which is within the boundary of Hewell Grange Park and Garden which is Grade II* Listed.

- The main Hewell Grange building is Grade I Listed, constructed in 1884-91, for Lord and Lady Windsor, later the Earl and Countess of Plymouth. The building is a three-storey red sandstone, Jacobean style build, designed by Thomas Garner.
- The estate at Hewell Grange had been in the hands of the Windsor family since the Dissolution, and by the mid-19th Century, it comprised a large landscaped park principally designed by Lancelot 'Capability' Brown in the mid-18th Century, and later redesigned by Humphry Repton in the early 19th Century.
- The Property also comprises a further 21 listed buildings and structures, including the ruins of the old Hewell Grange (understood to have been constructed in 1712) as well as other associated outbuildings, a vacant farm to the northern boundary and a walled market garden to the west of the site.
- In 1946 the house and much of the park was transferred to HM Prison Service for use as a borstal. Hewell Grange remained in prison use until March 2020 and has seen some alterations over time to accommodate the use. Despite these, the house and its interior remain substantially intact.

Planning

The site is located within the Green Belt and Hewell Grange Conservation Area. Hewell Park Lake and Woodland is also designated as a SSSI.

- A bespoke, sensitive and flexible approach to redevelopment is needed, and prospective purchasers are encouraged to explore proposals with the Local Planning Authority at the earliest opportunity.
- A range of potential uses are likely to be considered appropriate, subject to detailed consideration.
- A planning brief has been prepared as part of the marketing process, which is available to view in the data room.
