LOCATION

THORNHILL, is a small town in the Dumfries & Galloway region of southwest Scotland, with a residential population of approximately 1,600 persons.

The town straddles the A76, Dumfries to Kilmarnock road, at the A702 intersections and lies approximately 61 miles south of Glasgow, 63 miles south west of Edinburgh and 15 miles north of Dumfries. Dumfries is the region's main administrative centre with a population in the order of 35,000.

The quickest link to the A74(M) motorway is via the A702 at Elvanfoot, some 16 miles distant. In addition, rail services are available at Sanquhar to the north and Dumfries to the south.

The town benefits from a good level of local amenities, including a large recently constructed primary / secondary school.

Trade is generated from residents within the town as well as those located within the surrounding rural hinterland. There are a number of nearby hotels and visitor attractions which also bring in good levels of tourist trade and this has led to Thornhill establishing itself as a local boutique shopping destination.

DESCRIPTION

The subjects comprise a mid-terraced single storey retail unit, forming part of a larger two storey and attic property built circa 1912.

The main walls are of sandstone construction surmounted by a pitched and slated roof.

Windows comprise timber sash and casements with single glazing.

Access to the property is via a shared entrance vestibule, which is also used by the upper floor self-contained maisonette.

To the rear of the subjects is a Royal Mail sorting office.

There is a post box installed to the front elevation however we understand that this is now accessed externally.

Internally, the property provides bright and airy open plan space with tile / wood floor coverings. The shop area has attractive glazed timber wall panels. The remaining walls and ceilings throughout have a papered / painted finish.
