Executive Summary

Located in Denver's historic Ice House building, this lower-level commercial condo is available for sale or lease and offers a rare opportunity to secure versatile space in one of LoDo's most recognizable landmark properties. Just steps from Union Station, the unit benefits from exceptional walkability, visibility, and access to the residential, office, hospitality, and entertainment density that defines the Wynkoop corridor. The space is well-suited for retail, office, showroom, fitness/wellness, or creative uses, supported by a functional layout and direct access within one of downtown's most active pedestrian zones.

The unit is currently 21% occupied by Lincoln's, an established speakeasy, providing immediate in-place income and activation. The remaining 8,976 SF is fully vacant and available, offering significant flexibility for an owner-user, investor, or tenant seeking a customizable footprint in a high-demand submarket. Being part of the Ice House—known for its character, brick-and-timber architecture, and enduring tenant mix—provides owners and occupants with both cachet and long-term stability. With flexible use options, strong surrounding demographics, and proximity to some of Denver's best restaurants, hotels, and transit, this condo presents an outstanding opportunity for those seeking a premier LoDo address with built-in credibility and foot traffic.

Investment Highlights

- Prime LoDo Location – Situated in the iconic Ice House building, directly off Wynkoop Street and steps from Union Station, offering unmatched walkability and connectivity.
- Flexible Use Options – Lower-level commercial condo suitable for retail, office, showroom, wellness, or creative uses, appealing to a wide range of tenants or owner-users.
- Exceptional Transit Access – Immediate proximity to Union Station, the city's main transit hub, providing seamless access to light rail, commuter rail, bus lines, and the airport train.
- Strong Surrounding Demographics – Dense concentration of residential, Class A office, hotels, and entertainment venues drives consistent foot traffic and commercial demand.
- Landmark Property with Character – Brick-and-timber architecture and Ice House's established reputation create built-in appeal and credibility for future tenants or buyers.

Centrally located in Denver's Original
Urban Neighborhood

LoDo is one of Denver's most dynamic and historically rich districts, blending 19th-century brick warehouses with a modern, high-energy urban lifestyle. Anchored by Union Station and framed by some of the city's best dining, nightlife, boutique retail, and creative office environments, LoDo has evolved into a magnet for both residents and visitors seeking an authentic downtown experience.

The area's vibrancy comes from its density of amenities and its walkability. Within a few blocks, you'll find award-winning restaurants, rooftop bars, national and local retailers, professional services, and Fortune-level employers, all connected by transit, bike lanes, and effortless pedestrian flow. Major attractions like Coors Field, McGregor Square, Larimer Square, and Wynkoop Plaza keep foot traffic steady throughout the day and deep into the evening.

For businesses, LoDo offers the rare combination of character real estate, strong daytime population, high tourism activity, and a built-in customer base from surrounding residential lofts and office towers. Its mix of culture, commerce, and connectivity makes it one of Denver's most compelling places to establish a retail storefront, creative studio, café, or service-oriented concept.

LoDo isn't just a historic district — it's one of the city's most consistently vibrant economic engines, and an ideal setting for businesses seeking visibility, foot traffic, and a true downtown Denver identity.

The image shows the exterior of a historic brick building, identified as 'The Ice House'. The upper portion of the image features a dark, corrugated metal awning with the words 'THE ICE HOUSE' in large, light blue letters. A security camera is mounted on the underside of the awning. Below the awning, the building's facade is made of red brick. The lower portion of the image shows a sidewalk made of large, light-colored stone tiles leading to a set of glass doors with dark frames. The walls on either side of the doors are constructed from large, rough-hewn, reddish-brown stone blocks. A small green planter box with red flowers is visible on the left side of the frame.

Property History and Detail

Constructed in the late 19th century, the Ice House building at 1801 Wynkoop Street started life around 1895 as the Littleton Creamery. It was later expanded by Beatrice Foods to function as a cold storage warehouse. Before modern refrigeration, its name came from the many ice vaults used to keep goods frozen — a testament to its original industrial purpose.

The building's masonry is especially noteworthy: its brickwork reflects a Renaissance-style design, and over time it became a landmark in Denver's Lower Downtown (LoDo) district. After decades of use as a cold storage facility (around 80 years), the building was repurposed in the mid-1980s. In 1985, it was added to the National Register of Historic Places, securing its status as a historic structure. Today, the Ice House building combines its rich industrial past with modern adaptation — offering loft-style residential and commercial condo spaces while maintaining its architectural integrity.

Lincoln's is a popular, cash-only "hidden" bar or speakeasy located in the Ice House building near Denver's Union Station. Its primary draw is that all drinks are priced at $5, including a selection of spirits, beers, wines, and a specialty Old Fashioned.

A no-frills, basement-level bar that emphasizes atmosphere, conversation, and highly affordable, simple drinks, the name and cash-only policy are a nod to Abraham Lincoln, who is featured on the $5 bill.

It has a cozy, dark, and lively underground feel with vintage decor, including a 156-year-old couch and booths made from church pews. The lighting is dim, and the vibe is non-pretentious. The menu is simple: a selection of around 10 spirits, various mixers, beer, and wine are all $5.

Part of the experience is the challenge of finding the bar, as there is no sign or obvious entrance from the street.
