The vacancy rate in the Southeast Las Vegas Submarket is 4.3%, compared to the metro average of 5.1%. The vacancy rate has risen slightly in the past year but is still below the submarket's historical average of 7.4%. The submarket encompasses the city of Henderson, one of the fastest-growing cities in the U.S. over the past decade.

In the past 12 months, the submarket had 78,000 square feet of absorption and 78,000 square feet of completed construction. Supply pressure will be limited in the near term as only 15,000 square feet is under construction, which would expand inventory by 0.1% once all projects are completed.

Malls carry some of the lowest vacancies at 1.5%, while strip centers have some of the highest average vacancy rates at 3.9%. The average rent per SF is $30.00 compared to the metro average of $34.00. Rents have changed by 3.9% in the past year. Several significant trades drove an uptick in sales volume. About $208 million worth of retail assets have traded here in the past 12 months, compared to the annual historical average of $186 million. (CoStar)
