About The Area

Buford, GA

Buford is a growing suburban city located in the northeastern part of the Metro Atlanta area, primarily in Gwinnett County with a small portion extending into Hall County. Situated along the southern shore of Lake Lanier, Buford offers a mix of scenic outdoor access and convenient suburban living. It is about 30 miles north of Atlanta and is easily accessible via Interstate 85 and Interstate 985, making it a practical location for commuters while still maintaining a quieter community feel.

The area blends historic charm with modern development. Downtown Buford features locally owned shops, restaurants, and community events, while major retail and entertainment options are available at the Mall of Georgia, one of the largest shopping centers in the Southeast. Outdoor recreation is a major draw, with boating, fishing, parks, and walking trails available around Lake Lanier. Buford is also known for its strong local school system, the Buford City School District, which attracts many families to the area.

Overall, Buford offers a balance of small-town atmosphere and suburban convenience, with diverse housing options ranging from historic homes to newer subdivisions. The community continues to grow while maintaining a family-friendly environment and access to both natural beauty and urban amenities.
