Location

Situated east of the mainline (Edinburgh to London) at Chathill Station, former railway sidings and yard.

Description

Alnwick is approximately 8 miles to the south west with Seahouses 5 miles to the east. There is direct access from the B1340 Ellingham/Chathill to Seahouses road. The yard is as identified on the plan and consists of relatively level ground incorporating part of the loading/unloading dock of the railway siding and a single storey stone building. The western boundary is the railway platform which is part stone and part fenced boundary to the adjacent field to the east with a post and barbed wire fence. The land narrows to the north and is overgrown. The yard was acquired by the rail network and would be suitable for a builder's yard or storage yard subject to any Planning Consents if required.

The property is held under Title Number ND4975
