Red Lion Square: Serenity In The City

The Barbon Buildings are located on Red Lion Square, a beautiful London Square set back from the hustle and bustle of High Holborn yet only a stone's throw from Holborn Underground station taking you into both the City and West End in a matter of minutes.

Steeped in history, Red Lion Square was laid out in 1684 by Nicholas Barbon and is said to be the resting place of Oliver Cromwell and home to several notable individuals including William Morris, Dante Gabriel Rossetti and John Harrison, the world renowned inventor of the marine chronometer, who lived at number 12 and has a blue plaque dedicated to him on the corner of Summit House.

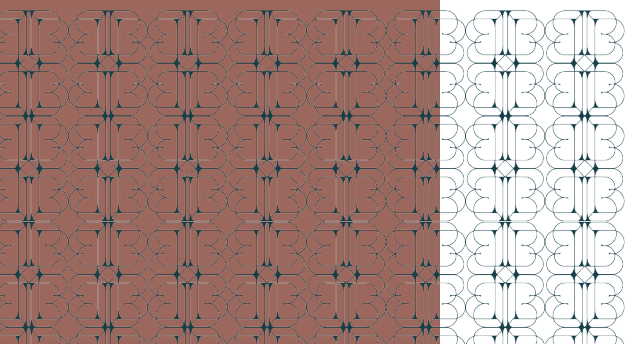

Midtown: Spoilt For Choice

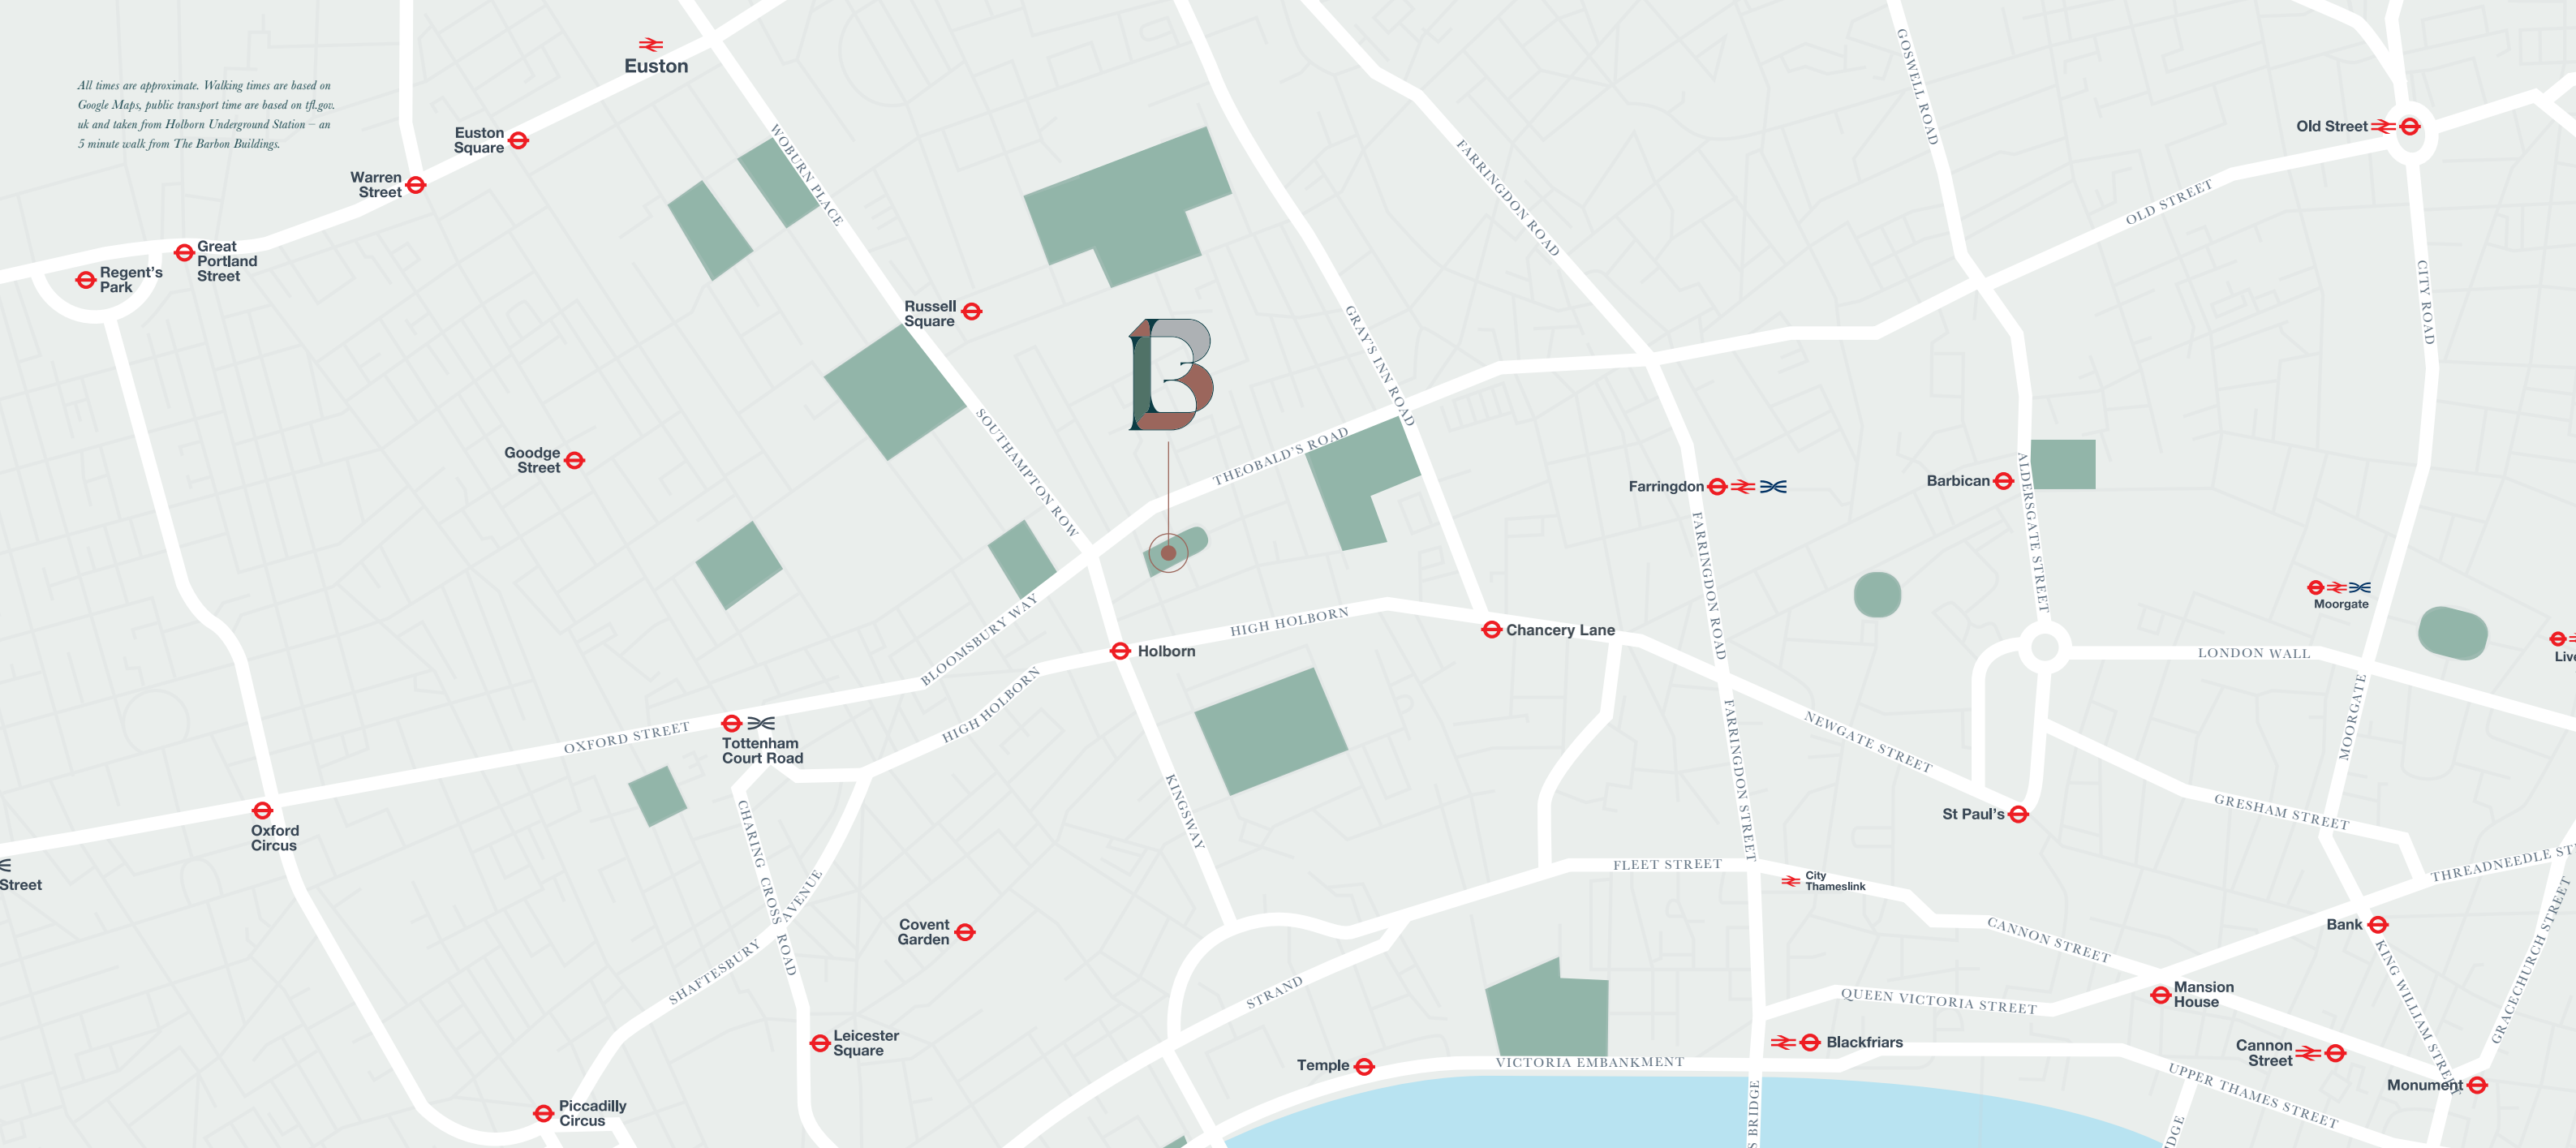

Holborn boasts a fantastic array of restaurants, bars and pubs, together with excellent transport links making it a popular place work, play and entertain. A few local favourites include Hubbard & Bell – a modern bar and grill run in partnership with the Soho House group, The Holborn Dining Rooms, Fields Bar & Kitchen – a Scandinavian-style wood-clad restaurant with two terraces, Chicken Shop and Leather Lane boasting some of the best street food in London at its weekday market.

The area is also home to the 5* Rosewood Hotel with luxury Sense Spa, Scarfs cocktail bar and two beautiful restaurants, and the Hoxton Holborn – the latest outpost of the Hoxton Hotel group.

For working out you'll find a Gymbox, Cycle Republic, The Yogic Path and PureGym all within walking distance of Red Lion Square.

All times are approximate. Walking times are based on Google Maps, public transport time are based on tfl.gov.uk and taken from Holborn Underground Station – an 5 minute walk from The Barbon Buildings.

Well Connected

Holborn provides superb transport links throughout central London, as well as over ground links that give commuters access to many destinations outside London. Underground stations in close proximity include Holborn, Covent Garden, Chancery Lane and Tottenham Court Road, all providing excellent transport through the heart of the capital. Overground stations include Charing Cross, Farringdon, City Thameslink, St. Pancras and King’s Cross stations.

The Barbon Buildings are also conveniently located for Crossrail, located within walking distance of Tottenham Court Road and Farringdon stations.
